

The primary constants from the PV theory are the most important discovery since Newton's gravitation. For, without the primary constants, our fundamental-physics calculations are nothing more than mathebabble.